W. P. WALTON.

A Bowery Tragedy.

Damon Blumenthal and Pythias Rosenberg were intimate friends and clerks in a Bowery (N. Y.) shoe store. Like mucilage, they stuck to each other in prosperity and adversity. Whoever looks for a friend without imperfections will never find what he seeks. Damon and Pythias are no longer friends.

In this quarrel, as in many other notable quarrels, a woman was at the bottom of it. She was a remarkably handsome woman who came in with the intention of purchasing a pair of shoes. If she had been an old woman or a boy their movements would have been as slow as that of an Alaska glacier, which moves at the speed of an inch and a half a year. As it was, they rushed at her, smiling sweetly as they rushed.

Both of them wanted to assist her in trying on the shoes, but as she had only one pair of feet, she smiled on Damon Blumenthal, whereupon a shade of vexation passed over the finely chiseled features of Pythias Rosenberg as he said in a voice that seemed to need oiling:

"Mister Blumenthal, I will wait out lady myself on."

"Oggeuse me, Mister Rosenberg, I pe-lease know I myishness mitout your advice," retorted Damon Blumenthal, getting red around the roots of his hair.

"By shrimy grashus, if somebody make me vence mad already, I mash him dot head on a couple of dimes twice ven he was mine own vader," remarked Rosenberg pawing around, calling for blood.

"You tam shackanapes," responded Bu-menthal, pounding on the counter and dancing up and down. "You pette run ned away before I get me grayz mad."

The fair customer fled, while Damon and Pythias became closer and more confidential than ever.

All of a sudden Blumenthal came down with the force of a man who trips at the top of the stairs and touches the home base in the cellar. Like the depositor in a savings bank, he lost his balance. Rosenberg had tripped him up. Before he could get up Rosenberg got on top of him, and bumped his head on the floor, beating a tattoo like that of a mule's hind legs on the ribs of the hired man. Like King David and other potentates, he sat on the throne.

Mr. Solomon Isaacs, the genial proprietor, remembering that

Those who in quarrels interpose
Ct must wipe a bloody nose,
did not interfere.

A gentleman by the name of O'Rafferty
did interfere, and put an end to the fe-tivities.

The results up to date are: Two shoe clerks out of position, after paying $10 each to the police judge, not so much for publication as a guarantee of good faith.
Their employer, Mr. Isaacs, refused to take back the ex bosom friends. Although he had managed to sell the policeman, who made the arrest, a pair of shoes, other persons who had rushed into the store had carried off numerous costly pairs of shoes, all of which was deducted from the wages of gladiators when they were paid off and bounced.

Perhaps the saddest feature of the case
was the remark of the would-be funny police justice, who said that the gladiators had probably been drinking a great deal of beer to put them so much at lager heads.—

The rule is pretty generally adopted in this country to "use Webster's preferred or thography." That is the theory; but in practice—probably because we are all too lazy to look up the common words—it is often forgotten. Here are a few samples of common errors, the wrong words being given first and the right second: Alien, aliene; mould, mold; moult, molt; mortgagor, mortgagee; coulter, colter; manilla, manis; thresh, thrash; moustache, mustache; straight jacket, straitjacket; schottische, schottish; duett, dueet; net, net; quintette, quintet; quartette, quartet; satchel, sachet.—[Ex. Ex.]

A great many people make the mistake in regarding "the home" as the house they live in. Now a house may be ever so costly and luxurious and contain very few of the qualities which endear the place to the occupants. To be a home in the truest sense, love, peace and the thousand little nameless attendants upon love must abide there. It is thus that often the poor cottage is more of "the home" than a palace.—

A handsome young bride was observed to be in deep reflection on her wedding day.
One of her bridesmaids asked her the subject of her meditation. "I was thinking which of my old beaux I should marry if I should become a widow."—[Philadelphia

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Wm. Braughton and Miss Delia Reynolds, of Pine Hill, were married Sunday. Mr. B. is aged 18 and his bride 14.

—Mr. McDuff Ward, of Marsburg, Sunday School Evangelist, is doing good work in our county, establishing and maintaining schools at various points.

—The building and real estate boom has struck this place. One small coal house, without a roof, has been built since New Year, and two houses and lots sold.

—G. C. Clark, the distiller, has been granted a pension. If Rockcastle can't have a boom in other lines, she is not going to fall into the rear in the pension process.

—Candidates for the legislature are not so numerous as they might be. No one has yet offered himself as a sacrifice or otherwise except Mr. Jarrett, on the republican side of the house.

—What has become of the Echo correspondent from Pine Hill? He should not stop the good work. Having written this out of his place, couldn't he be induced to stump the county?

—For fun or a funeral, let us say flatly to that Echo fellow who flings his feather flatly, flagrantly and feloniously at our head, that he falls farther and farther into the fault finder's failings. So there.

—Thomas Graves, familiarly known as "Uncle Tommy," a prominent and successful farmer of this county, died Saturday morning, aged 72. He was known for his many good qualities, strict integrity, and he was one of that class that is so scarce to day, an honest man.

—Tom McLemore brought in a wagon load of staves one day last week and just before reaching town he let his team go to near a gully and the wagon upset, throwing him off and the staves fell upon him, covering him up. His companions took him out a pretty badly scared boy, but not hurt further than a few scratches and bruises.

—A little six-year-old negro girl living here, having seen persons often jump off moving trains, took into her head to take a ride on Capt. Sweeney's train Saturday. When the train started she got on the front steps of the baggage car and says she rode almost a mile and jumped off. She came back down the track without a rag on her, having had her clothing torn from her when she struck the ground. She was considerably scratched up, but not badly; hurt.

—The late Jesse G. Baldwin, of Middletown, Connecticut, was an original and enthusiastic abolitionist. From the com-encement of the "irrepressible conflict" he entirely abstained from the use of any thing which was made by slave labor.

When he traveled he even carried with him to sweeten his tea and coffee, loaf sugar that he knew had been made by free men.

—The personal libel bill in the Texas legislature failed to pass. Representative

Miner, speaking on the bill urged the importance of a free press. He contended that its privileges were not as great as the fathers of the Republic intended, and declared that all defamers and blacksmilers were not connected with the press.

—Miss Catherine Lorillard Wolfe, who died recently in New York, left her magnificent collection of paintings to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, together with a bequest of $200,000 for the purpose of providing and keeping in order a suitable building for the exhibition of the collec-

—Barrau's $100,000 damage suit against the Grand Trunk railroad for killing Jim-

—The Hendricks monument fund foots

up $21,000.

—A Lynn clergyman relates that on one occasion, after marrying a couple, an envelope was handed him which he supposed of course contained the marriage fee. On opening it he found a slip of paper on which was written, "We desire your prayers."

—Do you want to poll the jury?" asked the clerk of the defeated plaintiff in a breach of promise suit. "Yes, I do? Let me have a pole about a minute, I'll make them see star!" she retorted as she pulled up her sleeves and spat on her hands.

lives in a garret room, lends her money at 12 per cent, interest and makes a couple of sausages last her a whole week for meat.

She refuses an offer of marriage about ev-

LONDON, LAUREL COUNTY.

—Born—Friday, to the wife of George Brown, a girl, christened Gertie Naomi. To the wife of Mr. Sam E. Scott, a girl.

—Mrs. Ella Joplin, Mt. Vernon, is visiting in this city. M's Lillie James is sick of pneumonia. Little Robert Craft is suffering from measles.

—Mrs. Lucy, a wife of G. W. Johnson, died Friday morning of cancer, aged about 80 years. Mr. Isham Bryant, father of Mrs. J. T. Williams, of this place, and Mrs. H. G. Litton, of Somerset, died Friday.

—Another sanguinary battle has been added to the current history of Pittsburgh; this time between Jim Mallins and John Evans, both colored, on one side and John and Tom Stringer on the other. The two negroes were badly, perhaps fatally shot while John Stringer's head was severely pommelled with the breach of a pistol.

—J. T. Brown is always abreast of the times. He has moved his store and tin-ware house onto another lot, fronting Main street, and is laying the foundation for 20x60 fire-proof building, to be of corrugated iron throughout, and shortly to be completed. He will then erect sheds covering a quarter of an acre of ground, the roof to be corrugated iron, to be used for storing farming implements, etc. We're still booming.

—Maj. G. M. Adams, Frankfort, was seen at the Riley House Sunday evening by an I. J. representative. He was on his way to the Manchester court, and in response to inquiries concerning politics, said: "There is but one race in the State; that is between Richards and Hardin for Attorney General—a desperate, close and hard struggle. Buckner will unquestionably be the nominee for governor, the Major is a Buckner man" and the invincible Tom Corbett has practically no opposition for register of the Land Office. Further than this I cannot speak advisedly," concluded the genial major; and although "Little Mat" is a pretty safe guesser, and a well-known, effective fighter, I am inclined to the opinion that in one race at least he speaks unadvisedly. I have an abiding faith in the wisdom of the Kentucky Yeomanry and shall not believe Farmer Harris is beaten until the last tag is sounded and the final action taken.

WITH SUPPLEMENT

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For the Legislature,
DR. J. D. PETTUS,
Of Crab Orchard.

SOMETIME ago, on the strength of a statement made to us by one of his intimate friends and supporters, who said he got the information from Gen. Buckner himself, we published an article which has since gone the entire rounds of the State, giving the general reasons for using tobacco so constantly, which was because it had been his sole companion for the 13 months that he was in solitary confinement, had kept him from going crazy and in sheer gratitude he would not now desert the friend in need, which had proven so great a friend indeed. We thought it was a beautiful little story and it made us feel even more kindly towards the old general than ever. But he has thrown all the fat in the fire by saying to Col. Craddock, "I am glad you have a better opinion of me than to believe such a story. I can't conceive how such an absurd misstatement ever got afloat. I was only in prison a few months and not severely treated." If the old man keeps on denying in this manner we'll soon doubt that he was in prison at all, that he was ever at Fort Donelson, or that he was the hero of any of the many pretty little stories floating around among his admirers.

CAPT. SAM E. HILL, who has been very favorably spoken of for the lieutenant governorship, writes to his friend, Masteron Peyton, Esq., that being unwilling to make the scramble which it now seems necessary to get any office, he has concluded to withdraw his name from the list of candidates, leaving his friends free to espouse the cause of any other candidate. With Senator Hill, who had a good following here, off the track we believe it would be the best thing our people could do, if they instruct at all in that race, to do so for Jim Bryan, of Covington, a young and progressive man and an orator that can hold his own with the best of them. With Bryan to talk to his head a few rounds, our esteemed friend, the gallant Col. Bradley, will wish that a millstone were about his neck and that he was cast into the sea. No matter who is at the head of the ticket, we shall need some such a man to counteract the effect of Billy's burning eloquence.

THE most rabid, rantankerous and uncompromising opponent of Senator Harris is Capt. Wallace Gruelle, of the Grayson Gazette. To read his choice effusions one is led to think that the old gentleman has an attack of the rabies or the jin jams, it is hard to tell which. Our venerable friend has lived long enough it seems to us to have learned that personal abuse is not argument, and such a warfare as he is making against a good man generally has the opposite effect from that intended. Does the good brother remember his tirade against Montgomery and how many voters that gentleman took up in his triumphant election to Congress?

OUR old friend, Soule Smith, the "Falcon" of the press, called the president of the city council, Mr. Kaufman, of Lexington, a liar, the other night, and got a feeler in his left optic from the irate Hebrew. Smith went for him then and there, and while they were rolling and tumbling on the floor friends interfered and the fight was declared a draw. The trouble grew out of some charges against the Hebrew's official crookedness made by Smith, which he denied and was thereupon given the lie. It is said that more blood will flow, but it is more than probable that hostilities are at an end.

THE fact that two candidates for State of offices have dropped dead within a month will not deter the average seeker for honor from "shying his castor in the ring." If all of the present noble army should fall that way, don't think we shall have to do without officers. The woods are full of men yet, who will take anything that they can get from a deputy constable to a left-tenant governor's office.

THE Owensboro Messenger, which knows something of the individual who opposes him, says the democrats of the entire State should work and pray for the success of Dr. Pettus in his race for the legislature. It will take but little work and less praying to accomplish the desired end for our man is as good as elected now.

GEN CLAY has thrown up the sponge, leaving our esteemed friend, the gallant warrior, Col. W. O'Bradley, a walk-over for the republican nomination for governor. What "me and Billy" can't do when we start out would be hard to tell. Together we might elect him, but we part company after May 4th.

A KENTUCKY editor has gotten there at last. Thomas D. Marcus, for a term register of the land office of this State and at present editor of the Cynthiaburg Democrat, has been appointed Inspector of Indian Agencies at an annual salary of $2,000 and per diem expenses.

THEY will all finally fall into a solid line. Congressman Springer, of Illinois, erstwhile an anti-Cleveland man, is out in an interview favoring the renomination of Cleveland, praising him in high terms and predicting his re-election.

THE Louisville Commercial shows its lamentable ignorance in regard to our candidate for the republican nomination for governor by speaking of him as "Mr. William O'Connor Bradley, of the county of Lincoln." There are three separate and distinct errors in that one line. In the first place the gentleman alluded to is not a master, but a colonel, promoted to that rank because of great valor in battle; in the second place his middle name is not O'Connor, but O'Donnell, and lastly, but by no means the least most unkind cut of all to a people who never did Mr. O'Sullivan any harm, Bradley does not hail from Lincoln county. Such ignorance is inexplicable, especially since there is a large and handsomely-bound book entitled "The Distinguished Men of Kentucky," which is procurable. In that book there is a steel-engraving of the handsome colonel, which cost him at least $50, and a history of his life, written by himself, or at his dictation, in which its startling events are portrayed in glowing colors, which cost him another $50 or so to have printed. Go to, young man; get thee to a library; that of any vain individual, who imagines he is of more importance than he is, and you will find the most remarkable book you ever cast your two eyes upon.

THE case of William Kissane is another evidence of the fact that crime of other kinds than murder most always comes out. Thirty years ago the individual who bears the above name might have been convicted on either of the charges of steamboat burning, murder, swindling and forgery, but he managed to get off to California and striking a streak of luck he made both money and a good name, till now he is a wealthy man, highly respected and with a family of grown up boys and girls, was passing the declining years of his life in peace and apparent happiness. He was known as Rogers and no one ever dreamed he was the thief that it can be proved he was more than a score and a half of years ago, till he was finally discovered, and refusing to submit to a call for blackmail, his history has been published from one end of the country to the other. Public sympathy, however, is with him, as it ever is with a man who tries to stonewall for a mispent life by making a good citizen of himself, and his innocent family are the subjects of especial commiseration.

THE prohibition question is agitating the Lone Star State from centre to circumference and it would not surprise those who are watching the drift of events if it carried by a good majority. Senator Reagan, the father of the Interstate Commerce bill, wishing to be on the popular side, has somewhat consulted in his opinion and is out in a letter strongly advocating the adoption of the amendment, whereas two years ago he was warmly opposed it. Like the really true temperance men, however, he objects to making a party question out of a purely moral one, and insists that a law which has for its object the lessening of crime cannot be called a substantive law and is not therefore undemocratic.

IN a discussion of family affairs at Meadville, Pa., Mrs. Buchholz, emphasized a point she was trying to make by throwing a lighted lamp at Mr. Buchholz's head. An explosion followed, setting fire to both of them and the house. The wife was so badly burned that she died, the husband was fatally burned and the house is now a pile of ashes. All of which makes us say what we say, that when a wife wants to beat her husband she had better do it with her favorite weapon, the broom stick.

BRO. KEN, of the Jessamine Journal, has failed to send us his paper since it arose Phoenix-like from ashes, but from a copy sent to us personally by some one, we observe that he gets the INTERIOR JOURNAL right along and appreciates it so much that he uses its editorials intact, forgetting of course to credit. Two or more appear in the issue before us, but it is all right; we love to help our friends out.

Brown Allen, Mahone's Auditor of Virginia, gave his brother-in-law, Hamilton, $16,000 worth of tax bills against railroads to collect and paid him 20 per cent. for the work, when the legal per cent. was only 2%. The democrat took the case to the Supreme Court, which has just decided that Hamilton is only entitled to $600 and requiring him to return the balance of $2,600.

The coal miners in the Jellico region of this State have gone out on a strike and as a consequence the Kensee, Woodridge, East Tennessee, Standard and other mines are shut down, with no prospect of opening up for some months. There are about 700 men employed in the mines. The cause of the strike is a refusal on the part of the men to sign the yearly contract, requiring them to agree not to strike for one year.

Owsley for the prosecution. H. C. Kauffman, R. H. Tomlinson and L. F. Hubble have been retained for the defense.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company will soon be the largest company of the kind in the United States. When the furnaces which are now well under way are completed, which will be during the year, the company will have ten furnaces, making about 1,200 tons of iron per day; the coal output will be 5,000 tons per day, with about 2,500 coke ovens, besides its several large manufacturing enterprises, all of which are in successful operation. This company owns about 198,000 acres of iron and coal lands in Tennessee and Alabama. The number of men employed will be over 5,000.

IT is rarely a county so fortunate in its legislative aspirants as Boyle. Either of the three candidates would have made a good representative, the one chosen as good as the best of them. Now let the people see to it, as they no doubt will, that W. J. Lyle is elected by the large majority he deserves.

THESE are some very fresh postal clerks in the business and they seem to think it is their duty to delay instead of giving mail matter all possible dispatch. The other day one returned our package of papers for Kansas City which our clerk had carelessly added "Ky." to instead of "Mo." with "no such office in State named," when anybody could have seen the evident error.

THESE is a prospect that Mr. Huntingdon's calculations to gobble up the Kentucky Central at its sale on the 21st, will be interfered with. The Richmond Terminal, which already owns the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia, will enter the contest for it, it is said, in order to secure an entrance to Cincinnati and a Northern connection.

CASEY COUNTY has at last had a hanging and while it was done by order of Judge Lynch, it was much better than no hanging at all. A miserable hound caught in the act of killing sheep was taken by the irate citizens of Liberty and with as much solemnity as could be commanded under the circumstances, a rope was put around his neck, the victim led to a convenient tree and in the presence of a jeering throng, was launched into the boughs from whence let us hope no sheep killing dog will ever return.

SATURDAY night Sam Dunn got a buggy and taking a couple of colored men with him, went in the direction of Halls Gap and returned after several hours with about a couple of gallons of whisky and brandy. Marshal Newland had smelled a mouse in the meantime and going to Dunn's room, took charge of the liquor and arrested him. Dunn claims that he got the whisky for other parties at their special request, but Newland had a suspicion, which he thinks well founded, that he intended to open a blind tiger. At any rate, there were preparations for a grand drunk, which was very properly knocked in the head. As the liquor was apparently purchased elsewhere than at Rowland, the only place in this vicinity that it can be sold legally, the question as to where it was bought should be thoroughly investigated. The prohibition law must be enforced and the officer who shows a disposition to do his duty in the matter should be fully supported in his efforts.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The present has been a most unsatisfactory and unprofitable term of the court. In every case of any importance there has been a hung jury, until the thing has grown monotonous and disgusting. The trial by the average jury, most always a travesty on law and justice, seems to become more of a farce as the days go by.

The suit for $1,000 damages against the Louisville & Nashville by G. A. Luckey for the killing of his race mare, after a day and a half given to its trial, resulted in the usual hung jury, but the judge held it over till Monday, when it again wrestled with the problem of damages or no damages.

At noon yesterday they were discharged standing, we learn, 8 for giving Mr. Luckey $1,000 and three for the railroad. The case was tried with 11 jurors. Dr. J. B. Owsley against the same railroad for $175 for the killing of a mule was mulcted with the costs. The company had previously offered him about half of the value he put on the animal. The noted case against Levi and William Hubble by the First National Bank was then put on trial. It is for $3,000 or more and the gentlemen are sued as security for Bob Mattingly, who bought the Stanford Mill property. The defendants' plea is that they were induced to sign the note by misrepresentations.

In respect to the memory of Judge Fox, for two terms the judge in this district, Judge Morrow adjourned his court from Friday afternoon till Monday.

A NICE little hop in honor of the Hustonville and other visiting ladies and gentlemen was given at Owsley Hall Friday night.

DRIPPING SPRINGS.—As usual our energetic friend, Col. D. G. Slaughter, is the first on deck with a suggestion as to the best and cheapest place to find health and recreation this summer and in a supplement sent with this issue tells of the low prices and many advantages of his cozy little resort. Our patrons will also find some other entertaining matter in the supplement.

THE most intense prohibitionists could not find fault with Dr. Pettus position on the question nearest his heart. He says that there were some objectionable features in the law as adopted which he could not conscientiously endorse by his vote, but at the same time he did not oppose its adoption, willing that those who advocated it should be allowed to give it a fair trial.

Since it has been adopted he is for its strict enforcement, is opposed to any further agitation of the subject by a resubmission of the question to a popular vote in this county, and he will very cheerfully support a bill submitting a prohibition amendment to the constitution of the State. In addition he is a strict temperance man by practice, a man of excellent sense and good judgment and if the people elect him, as we believe they will, we will be sure that a gentleman will represent us at Frankfort.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Mr. Blaine is said to be possessed of a superstitious feeling that the termination of his name in "e" instead of "n" has been fatal to his presidential aspirations. Had he been named Washington or Jefferson it would have been all right. Their immortal names, as we all know, end in "n." But Mr. Blaine has more reason to dread the "C" that begins the other man's name." — [Philadelphia Record.]

The first thing the republican politicians throughout the country will look for in their newspapers on the morning of the 23d of April will be Roscoe Conkling's speech at the Grant birthday dinner of the Americus Club, in Pittsburg, the day before. Mr. Conkling, though out of politics, played a not unimportant part in the presidential canvass of 1884; and now, that 1888 is near at hand, anything he has to say will be significant.—[Washington Star.]

The great Buckner demonstration which was to boom the Harri county hero at Louisville on the 15th, has completely collapsed, and the Harris banner still floats triumphant in the Falls City. The arrangement was to have the general's ex-Confederate friends hold a meeting and boom him for the democratic nomination for governor. General Dan Carlos Buell was to preside, wrapped in the American flag, whilst Emmet Logan was to dance the boozie booz before the foot lights, completely enclosed with the red, white and red, which has been so tenderly laid away. Teers came a break in the arrangements, however, and the whole thing has been declared off. The truth of the matter is that Harris is so far ahead of Buckner in Louisville that the latter's friends saw that the demonstration would end in a failure, and expose Buckner's weakness at a point which he has all the while regarded as his stronghold.—[Richmond Register.]

The result of the woman suffrage experiment in Kansas has been anything but satisfactory. The standard of womanhood has been lowered in the State and the effect of the matter will be a public outcry against a repetition of such scenes. The women deported themselves in not only a thoroughly unwomanly and unladylike manner, but their zest in the interest of their candidates carried them to such extremes that even the tough old pot-house politicians were amazed and disgusted. The best ladies of the cities turned out to work the polls in a manner that the respectable male element could never have been brought to adopt. Under the intoxication of the moment the most refined and elegant ladies openly electioneered among the gutter women and prostitutes. Worse than this, young women conducted open entertainments for all sorts of men, at which they made lavish use of their personal charms to influence votes. Every scheme known to the professional wire worker was made use of by the women and their motto through it all was that the end justified the means. The experiment in Kansas shows the curriculum that will be taught women in the school of politics, and men are unwilling to send their wives, their sisters or their daughters to such a school.—[Louisville Post.]

Of all the creatures of God's creation the malicious tale bearer is most to be feared. He is an abortion of manhood. He is a miscreant. He strikes in the dark. He stabs in the back. He murders character. He betrays a good name. He slays honor. He estranges friends. He stirs up strife. He ruins lives. He causes deaths. He is more dangerous than a mad dog. He is more to be feared than the most venomous serpent. The poison of his whisper is more deadly than malignant disease. The stab of his tongue is more fatal than the murderer's dirk. He is an assassin of all that is good and noble and true in humanity. He kisses the hand and stabs to the heart. The sanctity of home, honor, reputation disappear before him. He is a scoundrel and a liar. He is worse than a thief and no fit companion for a suck egg dog. Turn a deaf ear to him! Watch him! Mark him! Boot him out and then throw your boot away!—[Ex.]

Since it became fashionable for young ladies to wear a collar and a necktie their superiority to man has been fully demonstrated. You never see a lady with her necktie over her ears. A brief trial of six months has taught woman more in the necktie-wearing art than men have learned in 6,000 years. A human being that can make a necktie stay in place should have the right to cast two ballots at every election.

Cavalry practice on bicycles and tricycles has been introduced in the French armies. It has been decided that a certain proportion of the men in the infantry regiments are to be trained to the use of the velocipede, the utility of these machines having been satisfactorily established.

Interstate Newspaper Commissions.

The railroads have called in their so-called complimentary passes, all the leading newspapers in the country, including the Louisville papers, have ceased publishing the railroad time-tables, and the Chicago News announces the following railroad personal rates:

First—For the setting forth of the virtues (actual or alleged) of presidents, general managers or directors, $2 per line for the first insertion and $1 for each subsequent insertion.

Second—For puffs expressed in choice English, with occasional French phrases, or poetical extracts (the whole with a palpable motive of honest enthusiasm), $2.50 per line, 50 per cent. reduction on each subsequent insertion.

Third—General passenger agents and division superintendents will be accorded half rates on the terms offered in rule No. 1, but in all cases where the title of Colonel is used regular first class rates will be demanded.

Fourth—Thousand mile tickets on the basis of two cents per mile will be received in exchange for advertising done at our card rates, but these tickets must hold good on passenger as well as on freight trains.

Fifth—No deviation from the card rates can be made in favor of parties handing us five-cent cigars with the puffs they desire published.

Sixth—For complimentary notices of the wives and children of railroad officials we demand $1.50 per line. We have on hand, ready for immediate use, a splendid assortment of this literature.

Seventh—Poetry will be made to order at $8 per inch, agate measure. We are prepared to supply a fine line of heptameter puffs, also a limited number of sonnets and triolts in exchange for 1,000 mile tickets. Epic poems containing description of scenes, dining cars, etc., will be published at special rates.

Eighth—General Superintendents sending requests for the suppression of news must accompany their requests with $10 bills—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A Queer Marriage Ceremony.

The latest marriage ceremony performed by County Judge Grider is the queerest one of which we have ever heard. The judge having been notified that Jim Beasley and Bet Barnett, a colored couple, would call upon him to tie the nuptial knot, made preparations and got off the following:

"Jim, will you take Bet,
Without any regret,
To love and cherish,
Tillions of you perish,
And I laid under the sod,
So help you God?"

All of which being answered in the affirmative, the judge turned to the blushing (?) bride elect and said:

"Bet, will you take Jim,
And cling to him,
Through thick and thin,
Holding him to your heart,
Till death do you part?"

But acquiesced by a modest bow of the head and the happy pair were dismissed as follows:

"Through life's alternate joy and strife
I now pronounce you man and wife,
Go up life's hill till you get to the level—
And salute your bride, you rusty devil!"

The other day while a young deputy postmaster was engaged at his work, in stepped one of our most bashful maidens of sweet 16 with a money order which she desired to have cashed. She handed it, with bashful smile, to the official, who, after closely examining it, gave her the money it called for. At the same time he asked her if she had read what was on the margin of the order. "No, I have not," she replied, "for I cannot make it out." The deputy read as follows: "I send you $3 and a dozen kisses." Glancing at the bashful girl, he said: "Now I have paid you the money and I suppose you want the kisses?" "Y," she said, "if he sent me any kisses I want them too." It is hardly necessary to say that the balance of the order was promptly paid.—[Lexington Argus.]

It does make no difference how many good resolutions a man makes nor how many times he "fesses' ligion, if his blood sin's right when he's born he's bound to be a bad person. Nature puts the same mark on a man as never changes her mine afterwards. A man may be full of debility an' reason himself out of it, but if he's born wid a lack of principle, he'll die wid de same lack. Judas could no more hep betrayen his Master than his Master could hep been crucified.—[Arkansaw Traveler.]

Nebraska reports a remarkable case of long delay in bringing a murderer to the gallows. The crime was committed 15 years ago, but the body was not found for over a year, and it was ten years before the murderer was arrested. Four years of the law's delay followed, the accused being three times sentenced to be hanged. Now the governor has signed the death warrant and the doomed man has apparently no further chance of escape.
